New York? Wa-al, stranger, shake! New York? Sure as shootin'. We've got 'em. They can't get away. The Irish recruits will take care of the dades, and the Phar-isees, and the Mugwumps, and the Willipus-Wallipuses; and knockin' the spots out of the free trade red-coats, and Blaine's goin' to get it by not less than 30,000.

In other words we have the esteemed enemy on the hip in the Empire State. Outside of the metropolis New York is all right. In the city the Democracy is "all tore up." Blaine will reach the city with so big a majority that they can't upset him. Now York knows on what side a

On a square fight between the two great parties the country has shown a more even division than is entirely agreeable to those Republicans who are convinced that things will go to pot if their party goes out of power.

This year there is not a square fight between the two great parties. The Republican party has chosen for its lender a man who has grown up with it, who has contributed to its triumphs and stands to-day at the head of American statesmen towering over all. The Democratic party, for reasons of its own, substituted seeming dudes and Pharisees of New York, Mr. Blaine is stronger than his party. The chance of Democratic success is made beautifully less by the presence in the field of General Butler in full armor. Butler will draw heavily from the Democratic vote particularly in New York, which State is thus made safely Republican.

To offset the Butler bolt the Democrats have the direct aid of the Independents and the indirect help of the St. John Prohibitionists. Beyond the cities of New York and Brooklyn there is not much of the Independent movement. The St. John following is very generally scattered John following is very generally scattered over the North. One box has cured the worst it is to vote for principle and leave results with God. The boldest utterance in this line appears in a Democratic newspaper of our own State, the Alderson Statesman.

This earnest champion of Democracy carries at its masthead, first the National Democratic ticket, and after that the National Prohibition ticket-as though fusel oil and water would mix in this climate The Statesman assumes that Cleveland will carry West Virginia by 25 000 major ity; that it is useless to vote for Blaine that "Republicans whose prejudices will not allow them to vote the Democratic ticket" will be glad to be shown a way by which they may help Cleveland, and that way is to vote for St. John.

Our first duty is to save the Republic, then to reform it. • • Let every Demoeratic prohibitionist be at the polls on November 4 and vote and work as he has never worked before for Cleveland and reform." A shrewder Democrat would not have been so plain about it, but in all of the Democratic encouragement to Prohibitionists the meaning is the same.

The Democratic spider, sings his song to the Prohibition fly, and Cleveland wonders whether after all he is to be made President by the votes of people who are filled with a high moral purpose. In his lucid intervals the Prohibition fly sees through the scheme and smiles a smile of

A THRILLING SPEECH.

General Woodford's Reply to Mr. Bercher. Blackguardism to Be Rebuked. General Woodford's speech at the Times:

There lives in this city one of the most eloquent clergymen in the land and one whose services in behalf of humanity-have been of the most eminent character. The lieve most thoroughly in the honesty and purity of that gentleman. My confidence and faith in that man are absolute. But not many years ago there came an hour of trial to that gentleman when there was nothing between him and utter ruin but confidence of the loving hearts of the people of Brooklyn. There were letters produced and read upon a public trial then held in this city, and which lasted many months. Had those letters been read and interpreted in the spirit and by the methods pursued by Mr. Schurz in reading and explaining the Fisher letters against Mr. Blante fley would have driven that clergyman from every pulpit in the land and from every home and fireside in the country. [Immense and prolonged cheering, mingled with cries of "That's so."] And we have triands was not that sea attach try. Now York knows on what side a protective tariff latters her bread, and when she gets started New York is no slouch. This time New York is a defined and she is under a big head of steam. Two years ago the Republicans were mad and let Cleveland take the State. This year they will politely relieve him of it.

New York? Let us all smile.

Its Tariff Recard.

In parts of West Virginia—notably in the First Congressional District—the Democratic party claims to be a party of protection to American industries.

When did the Democray assame the new role?—in the last tariff bill it passed, or the last one it tried to pass?

The last tariff bill it passed was the Walker tariff of 18id—a bill which bore the name of a Democratic Secretary of the Treasury, who said that our trade ought to be as free as our political institutions, a doctrine which all England edorses. That was the tariff which brought on the panic of 1857, wrecked the business of the country, emptied the National Treasury, destroyed the national credit, and forced the Government to pay 12 percent for what money it could get.

The last tariff bill the Democratic party tried to pass was the Morrison bill, by which it was sought to reduce the whole tariff 20 percent—a horizontal reduction which would have given great coniort to England, reduced every man's wages and left in the tariff all the inequalities that may exist there. This bill had the support of the Democratic Speaker of the House, the Democratic Chairman left in the tariff all the inequalities that may exist there. This bill had the support of the Democratic Chairman left in the Laurance and a roar of cheeres and sampler of this intention of Democratic party from the character of this man successful? And done the distribution is distributed with critic relieve him of it.

over the North. Republicans have regarded it with most apprehension in Indiana, Ohio and New York.

For awhile it looked as though St. John and his managers were going to be able to impose upon a great body of Republicans favorable to prohibition. Largely owing to the good sense of those Republicans, and partly because the Democrats showed too great a desire to coddle the Prohibition ticket, the St. John side-show "The Slough of Despondency" that way is to vote for St. John.

"It is true they cannot elect St. John this year," says the Stateman, "but every vote cast for him will be an additional encouragement to the friends of virtue throughout the land." There is a good deal of rare richness in this, but more in

At Wellsville, a strong Republican own, in which Cleveland, two years ago eccived a large majority made up of about four-fifths of the Republican voters, received a large majority mane about four-fifths of the Republican voters, this correspondent expected to find many Independents. After some searching he heard of one Cleveland enthusiast who had got a banner at his own expense, and was preparing to unfuri it. If hunted him up and introduced himself and his business. "Yes," drawled the man, "I am going to vote for Cleveland. Yes, I have had a banner made. Would you like to see it!" At the correspondent's request he brought out a white cotton flag, about the size of a pocket-handker-chief, on which he had phinted a rude design of a ferow. "I am a going to vote for Cleveland," tho man insisted; "and that's my banner."

General Woodford's speech at the Brooklyn Rink on a recent night was one of the greatest oratorical successes of his life. The following extract is made from the report of the speech in the Brooklyn Times:

Here is the business of the second tail "sets" in twenty-four hours, and in four days nervous connection is established. Thereafter the rodent guards its front tail as zealously as the other.
